

In a telephone conversation with a member of my host, I had to unlock one small phrase that identified the subject that would be required of me because our meeting at the Border-crossing at Nigra-Falls Ont, July 15, was too short and vague to establish the subject. She asked in a Kind, Gentle, and remote manner- DON'T FORGET THE STORIES- LIKE THAT OF THE WOLF.

FIRST, I seldom speak about the Wolf, because traditionally there is part of this Clan teaching that is completely left out, or the complete teaching is in half and Clan members are to travel to the land of the Cats to receive the balance.

SECOND, My subjects are usually legal and quite technical because the American Indian and his association and dealings with the United States is so complex that the average Attorney is no match for officials from the Bureau of Indian Affairs and for me to lecture to an audience on these subjects requires some type of preschooling just to understand my simplest terms.

STORIES! Would have to be legends. Legends that a small child heard from his elders. Stories and legends that form the future for an Indian child.

STORIES! LEGENDS! A subject closely related to mythology.

For one lifestyle and culture, it is the A,B,C's and the 1,2,3's and for any other lifestyle, it is a primitive story told by an Indigenus.

I've given the idea ~~xxxxxxx~~^{or} subject, much thought, because not quite three weeks ago I came to this city looking for a publisher of my latest manuscript. My sponsor directed me to an Egyptian Curator of a major Museum. I showed and could prove that the Egyptian culture did not die at 200 B.C. or 300 A.D. but continued on while before Columbus. I even gave him a linguistic trial on the modern language of the Egyptian which can be traced back to the Medieval in which there are American Indian

In a telephone conversation with a member of my host, I had to unlock identified the subject that would be required

one small phrase

because our meeting at the Border-crossing at Nigra-Falls Ont, July 15, was too short and vague to establish the subject. She asked in a kind,

Gentle, and remote manner- DON'T FORGET THE STORIES- LIKE THAT OF THE WOLF.

FIRST I seldom speak about the Wolf, because traditionally there is part of this Clan teachings that is completely left out, or the complete teachings are in half and Clan members are to travel to the land of the Cats to receive the balance.

SECOND, My subjects are usually legal and quite technical because the American Indian and his association and dealings with the United States is so complex that the average Attorney is no match for officials from the Bureau of Indian Affairs and for me to lecture to an audience on these subjects requires some type of preschooling just to understand my simplest terms. E

rr

STORIES! Would have to be legends. Legends that a small child heard from his elders. Stories and legends that form the future for an Indian child.

STORIES! LEGENDS! A subject closely related to mythology.

For one lifestyle and culture, it is the A,B,C's and the 1,2,3's and for any other lifestyle, it is a primitive story told by an Indigenus.

or . I've given the idea which subject, much thought, because not quite _ three weeks ago I came to this city looking for a publisher of my latest manuscript. A sponsor directed me to an Egyptian Curator of a major Museum. I showed and could prove that the Egyptian culture did not die at B.C. or 300 A.D. but continued while before Columbus. I even gave him a linguistic trial on the modern language of the Egyptian which could be traced back, to the Medieval in which there are American Indian