

You know as well as I, that these are excuses that were meant to pass on to the next generation to answer, because there has always been another generation to lay the burden on. But can you give proof that the next generation will have time to accept the Burden? NO!! You can't even give proof this generation has time to fulfill their obligations! The fact that you are counting on the next generation to answer for the obligations shows Genetically you could not know what to avoid unless you know what it is you have to avoid. Just think of it!! Though we don't mention in any form what these obligations are and haven't done it once in the last 4000 years, genetically we know!

It is not the responsibility of telling certain members of this generation that because of certain Clan or Tribal violations they will not be one of the handfull in THE GREAT MIGRATION, but the fact this time-there will be people who are not Indians in numbers that can't be calculated, who will follow us and will depend on us to make sure no Global Catastrophe will touch them so they too can survive to the next perfect world. It is Love that keeps you from telling this generation some will not be one of the chosen, while others who have not kept Clan or tribal laws will be among the chosen. Now! it is no longer excuses but a love -that cannot be measured or evaluated intellectual, yet within the exact science of Destiny that cannot change, in which all the facts are known before they exist and will happen proving Destiny knew you before you knew destiny and did not forget. Because someone stood in the place for the unborn generations/^{who}would not make it because of Destiny's Love. It is for this reason, I made up this story.

THE TIME WALKER.

on to the next generation -to answer', because there has always been another generation to lay the burden on. But can you give proof that the next generation will have time to accept the Burden? NO!! You can't even give proof this generation has time to fulfill their obligations!

The fact that you are counting on the next generation to answer for the obligations shows Genetically you could not know what to avoid unless you know what it is you have to avoid. Just think of it!! Though we don't mention in any form what these obligations are and haven't done it once in the last #OOO years, genetically we know!

It is not the responsibility of telling certain members of this generation that because of certain Clan or Tribal violations they will not be one of the handful in THE GREAT MIGRATION, but the fact this time there will be people who are not Indians in numbers that can't be calculated who will follow us and will depend on us to make sure no Global Catastrophe will touch them so they too can survive to the next perfect world. It is Love that keeps you from telling this generation some will not be one of the chosen, while others who have not kept Clan or tribal laws will be among the chosen. Now! it is no longer excuses but a love -that cannot be measured or evaluated intellectually, yet within the exact science of Destiny that cannot change, in which all the facts are known before they exist and will happen proving Destiny knew you before you knew destiny and did not forget. Because someone stood in the who place for the unborn generations/would not make it because of Destiny's

Love. It is for this reason, I made up this story.

THE TIME WALKER.