

is more than liberal to compensate for any inconveniences you may have suffered." With that, the stranger leaves.

Wynona: "So, when you deal with the Indian outside of Antiquity research everything is an inconvenience."

Pam: "Can I give a small conclusion?"

Clair: "Yeh! put this thing together!"

Pam: "What started out as foolish and corny now shows precise planning with government agencies involved all because 25 Indians went partly across the United States. This is a major event when Indians move about the country but don't ask me what."

Penny: "She is right! Everything shows this is the way, the government moves legally to Indians moving around the country. I can't add anything to this except they are moving according to the way the Time Walker wants them to move."

Clair: "O Key! what are you to tell me that is my next move?"

Everyone settles down to breakfast and go over the plans that Time Walker left in the House in Santa Fe that Clair knew nothing about.

6:02p.m. near Carrolton, New York

After renting a big Station Wagon, getting lost about ten times, they were told to stay at this Motel till a Bob Bigtree came for them to be taken to a house near someplace called "STEAMBURG."

The next two days are spent going to a house that is off an abandoned highway, across two fields, over an old creek and in the middle of some trees. How the construction company ever got here to build this house, could be the next wonder of the world. The Indians have made it known without any reservation, they are unhappy and suspicious about teaching one ritual that had been lost, but the Time Walker put it back together again. But because he asked, they are doing it. Unlearned as they are, trigonometry and algebra taught from their ancient ways is so simple, you walk around with your mouth hanging down.

is more than liberal to compensate for any inconvenience you may have. With that, the stranger leaves.

Wendy: "So, when you deal with the Indian outside of Antiquity research everything is an inconvenience."

Pam: "Can I give a small conclusion?"

Clair: put this thing together!"

Pam: " what started out as foolish and corny now shows planning with government agencies involved all because 25 Indians went partly across the United States. This is a major event when Indians move about the country but don't ask me what."

Penny: "She is right! Everything shows this is the way, the government moves legally to Indians moving across the country. I can't add anything to this except they are moving according to the way the Time Wants them to move.

Clair: "Q Key! what are you to tell me that is my next move?"

settles down to breakfast and go over the Time Walker' left in the House in Santa Fe that Clair' knew nothing about.

After renting a big Station Wagon, getting lost about 'cent they were told to stay at this Motel till a Bob Bigtree came for them to be taken to a house near someplace called "STEAKHOUSE."

The next two days are spent going to a house that is off an abandoned highway", across two fields, over an old creek and in the of some trees, HOW the company' never got here to build this house, could be the next wonder of the world. The Indians have made it known any reservation, they are happy and suspicious about teaching one ritual that had been lost, but the Time Walker" put it back together again, But because he asked, they are doing it.

as the are, and always from their ancient is 5@ simple, you walk around with your mouth hanging down.. "